Games athlete remembered at ceremony

► 'Nothing could have been done' to save heart attack victim, says organizer ► Athletes in 55 Plus games 'train all year' ► Competitors must qualify for games

Participants and special guests at this year's Alberta 55 Plus Winter Games took a moment to pay tribute to a fellow athlete who died during competition over the weekend.

Marvin Klein, 68, collapsed of an apparent heart attack while playing in a 65-plus hockey game in St. Albert on Saturday. Klein played goal for a team based in Gwynne, Alta., 80 kilometres southeast of Edmonton.

"Our sincere thoughts and prayers are with his wife, Gloria," said Capt. Ken Edel in his blessing during yesterday's closing ceremonies.

Alberta Lt.-Gov. Donald Ethell also gave his condolences to the Klein family, who he noted was not present at the ceremonies.

John Farlinger, media chair of the games, said when Klein fell to the ice play was at the opposite end, so the collapse was not the result of contact with the puck or other players.

A nurse in the crowd reportedly noticed Klein collapse and started CPR. Lifeguards from the pool brought one of the facility's defibrillators, and EMS was on scene within minutes to transport Klein to St. Albert's Sturgeon General Hospital.

Jail under lockdown after death of inmate

Edmonton Institution is under lockdown following the suspicious death of an inmate Saturday night.

Rick Dyhm, project officer, said the death occurred between 9 and 9:30 p.m., and that EPS homicide detectives are investigating.

Lockdown entails all inmates being locked in their cells at all times, said Dyhm, adding that all visits have been cancelled until further notice.

"Given we're a maximum security facility, we have had these types of incidents," said Dyhm.

There have been two homicides at the prison since 2000.

The prison opened in 1978 and is currently accommodating 279 inmates, though listed capacity is 222, said Dyhm.

Dyhm said the inmate was found dead in his own cell.  HEATHER MCINTYRE

Hockey fight leads to an investigation

An investigation has been launched into an on-ice incident involving a university hockey player who is no stranger to long-term suspensions.

UBC forward Michael Liamis — who was suspended for almost a full season by the Ontario Hockey League in 2009 — was given an automatic two-game ban Friday night for instigating a fight during a game against the U of A. Golden Bears forward Eric Hunter suffered a concussion and facial cuts after he was punched in the head and driven into the ice.

The white stuff didn't keep Edmontonians from painting the town red on Oscar night.

About 100 film buffs walked the red carpet just slightly north of Hollywood to watch the Academy Awards on the Varscona Theatre's big screen last night.

"We love the Oscars and are dazzled by the glamour — it's one of those events better enjoyed in a group," said event organizer David Belke. For $20 a ticket, attendees were given a chance not only to have the honour of being nominated but also to actually go home a winner by selecting who would take home the Oscars.

"As they arrive guests get eight tickets and, when the category is announced, we draw (winners) from the popcorn box," said Belke, adding prizes were local dinners out.

Partygoers were encouraged to dress in their best glam Hollywood-esque attire while getting the star treatment with a champagne bar and elegant avant-show fare.

Included in the entertainment slated for the evening were members of the crowd getting to test their acting chops by performing scenes from movies and a few other musical numbers.

SNOW REMOVAL UPDATE

Crews work to clear roads

Snow is upon us again, and city crews have been working all weekend to ensure the roads are clear for this morning's commute.

Starting Saturday morning, 45 pieces of equipment were deployed to plow and sand Edmonton streets, said traffic spokesperson Laura McNabb. Later that afternoon, the number doubled to 90.

As always, McNabb said, the primary focus is arterial roads, collector and bus routes, hills and bridge decks.

Conditions in residential areas will be assessed and plowing will start if required.

The snow is expected to take a break but start again later this week.

Seat licences mulled for arena

- City, Oilers should negotiate on team's share: Report
- Seat licences allow for 'pay me now or pay me later'

@METRONEWS.CA

Whether seat licences are introduced in a new downtown arena or ticket prices are simply increased should be left up to the Edmonton Oilers, says a new report.

"The benefit of a seat licence is obviously it does generate revenue," said city manager Simon Farbrotter. "(But) the Oilers have felt that maybe the seat licence is not something they believe is the ideal situation in the Edmonton market."

A personal seat licence gives the holder the right to purchase season tickets for a certain seat or suite. The proceeds are then used for construction costs.

The report, released last week, will be looked at on Wednesday by city council, which requested the information.

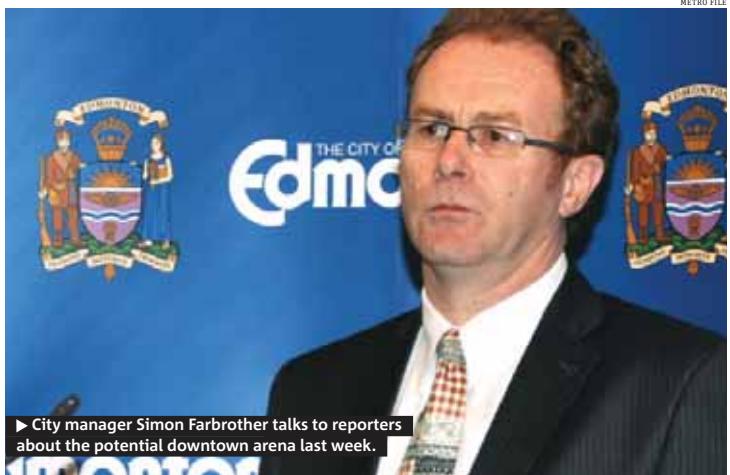

It states that ticket prices will increase when the Oilers move to a new arena, but that "the increase will be more if PSLs are not used, and less if PSLs are used."

"The team could dispense with PSLs and charge higher ticket prices, or they could charge a PSL and lower ticket prices," states the report.

The city has said it could raise $250 million through a community-revitalization levy and ticket surcharge for the $450-million project. Oilers owner Daryl Katz has promised $100 million.

More details regarding negotiations between the team and the city will come forward to council April 6.

Expected clash between rebels, Libyan forces

► Gadhafi's son denies that regime used force against its own people ► 'It is time for Gadhafi to go': Obama

Hundreds of armed anti-government forces backed by rebel troops who control Zawiya, near Tripoli, prepared yesterday to repel an expected offensive by forces loyal to Moammar Gadhafi.

The Gadhafi regime, eager to show foreign reporters that the country is calm and under the dictator's control, took visiting journalists to Zawiya, 50 kilometres west of Tripoli. But an Associated Press reporter on the tour confirmed the anti-government rebels are in control of the centre of the city of 200,000. They have deployed army tanks and anti-aircraft guns mounted on pickup trucks.

On the outskirts of the city, however, they are surrounded by pro-Gadhafi forces, also backed by tanks and anti-aircraft guns.

Gadhafi has launched by far the bloodiest crackdown in a wave of anti-regime uprisings sweeping the Arab world. The United States, Britain and the United Nations Security Council imposed sanctions on Libya over the weekend. Human-rights groups and European officials have put the death toll at hundreds, and even thousands.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sanctions

- Canada joined the United Nations and several Western countries in slapping sanctions against Libya after the deadly crackdown on protesters.
- But Canada decided to go beyond the sanctions announced Saturday by the United Nations Security Council, Prime Minister Stephen Harper said yesterday.
- Canada imposed an asset freeze and prohibited financial transactions with the government of Libya, its institutions and agencies and the Libyan Central Bank

Gadhafi's nurse latest to bail

Libyan dictator Moammar Gadhafi was ditched by yet another close confidant yesterday: the Ukrainian nurse thought to have a close relationship with the leader.

A U.S. diplomatic cable released last year claims the eccentric 68-year-old leader is deeply attached to Halyna Kolotnytska, 38, one of four Ukrainian nurses who take care of him.

The cable published by WikiLeaks describes her as a "voluptuous blond" who always travels with Gadhafi as only she "knows his routine." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Using Twitter to organize a protest? Think again in China

Attempts to spark civil dissent à la Tunisia's Jasmine Revolution has spread to China. Last week, an Internet campaign to carry out protests akin to those of the Arab world called for regular weekend demonstrations in 18 cities across China.

In an open invitation on boxun.com, anonymous activists called for non-violent protests "to let the Chinese government respect the Chinese people's basic rights."

Police authorities have been organized in clamping down on alleged demonstrators. During the week, three Chinese Internet users were arrested for "state subversion" after only a "rewet" on a Twitter discussion over a protest. Reports say 100 dissidents were also put under "house arrest."

Among the activists' appeal is tackling the rising tide of state-level corruption. ● JORDAN POUILLE

METRO WORLD NEWS IN BEIJING

Yesterday in China witnessed a fresh attempt by activists in 18 cities to rally the people for justice and equality in a movement of civil dissent akin to the events in the Arab world.

In Shanghai, at least seven people were arrested after police quelled anti-government protests. Meanwhile, in Beijing, I witnessed how city authorities reacted to signs of civil opposition – and how I got caught up in it.

In the Wangfujing shopping district downtown, one metro station away from Tiananmen Square, construction barriers were in place since Friday on a street activists had planned to demonstrate. By yesterday, Wangfujing had morphed into something that looked more like a massive police station. There were already more police about than regular shoppers or even potential protesters: Policemen in plain clothes, Chengguan guards (municipal police), emergency police units, civil volunteers and other security personnel.

Curiously, there are tell-tale signs that the heavy snow Saturday and yesterday morning was artificially provoked by the Beijing Weather Modification Unit to discourage crowds on the streets. This state meteorological agency is known for attempting to alter weather and increase precipitation by firing rockets loaded with silver iodide into clouds above.

Palin's star continues to fall in U.S.

► Palin's unfavorability rating stands at 56 per cent, according to recent CNN/Opinion Research poll

In two short years, Sarah Palin has gone from being the belle of the Republican ball to a near pariah among the party elite and its supporters, with many now openly dismissing her as a credible presidential candidate as she continues to weigh a run for the White House.

New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie is the latest Republican to suggest that Palin doesn't have what it takes to mount a successful bid as she communicates her message almost exclusively via Twitter and Facebook and makes appearances only on friendly media outlets like Fox News.

Americans need an unfiltered look at the people who want to occupy the Oval Office, Christie said.

There's even a recent Canadian element to her woes — her scheduled appearance at a fundraiser for two hospitals in Hamilton, Ont., has been cancelled due to complaints from potential donors. A few weeks ago Palin's daughter, Bristol, was also removed from a sexual health panel at a university in St. Louis, Mo., after students protested against paying her a speaker's fee. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Toddler stuck in locked vault for hours

said.

Authorities say police and firefighters couldn't free the toddler and feverishly summoned the locksmith after the child apparently strayed into the open vault as the bank was closing Friday — before an employee shut the vault door for the day.

Conyers police Chief Gene Wilson told the Atlanta Journal-Constitution it was a "very tense scene" as authorities stood by along with the relatives, and rescue workers pumped fresh air into vents leading to the vault.

The child was spotted on security cameras inside the vault, which has a time-release lock, Wilson said.

He added that the girl was fine except for needing a diaper change.

Rocketing oil prices: Who stands to gain?

► Western Canada will do much better, Central Canada noticeably worse, economists say

The Middle East unrest sending gas prices to $1.20 a litre and beyond could prove beneficial to some.

For oil-producing provinces that collect royalties from resources, the payoff is considerable.

For non-producers, there is only pain. By some estimates, every $10 hike in the price of oil trims Ontario's annual economic output by 0.1 to 0.3 percentage points.

As for Ottawa, which is deep in red ink, analysts believe the feds will make off like at least a modest bandit from high oil prices.

That's what happened when commodities hit record levels in the years leading up to the 2008 recession, said Michael Gregory, an economist with BMO Capital Markets.

"In Canada we do get the income boost. Corporate profits go up, Canadians own stock, so their wealth goes up and the dollar tends to drift up, so you can buy more," he said. All that generates government revenues.

Profitable companies tend to hire more employees and pay them more, he added, generating tax revenues. More jobs in the oil-patch mean more jobs in support manufacturing industries in Ontario.

On the other side of the ledger, high oil prices slow down the U.S. economy, which tends to hurt exporters in Ontario. They also add to business costs.

Oil, interest rates, GDP the buzz this week

Volatile oil prices, the latest word from the Bank of Canada on interest rates and a report on December's economic growth will give investors plenty to chew over this week.

Traders will be focused on oil prices in particular, after a dizzying market ride last week in which crude surged to more than $103 US a barrel. Crude ended the week at $97.88 US amid signs the crisis in Libya may have cut crude supplies less than previously estimated.

Oil prices will also factor into tomorrow's Bank of Canada report. The central bank is expected to keep its key interest rate unchanged at one per cent.

Economists have said the bank probably will not raise rates until midyear, and governor Mark Carney's decision will be made more difficult by the wild swings in oil prices.

Meanwhile, investors are looking for good news from Statistics Canada when the agency reports today on economic growth for December. TD Economics forecasts a GDP boost of three to 3.5 per cent.

DOWNTOWN ARENA DEBATE CONTINUES

Urban Compass

TERENCE HARDING

The debate about a downtown arena shows no signs of abating any time soon.

On the upside, everyone seems to be getting a kick at the can, which is what democracy is all about. In addition to newspaper and television coverage, there is a plethora of tweets, blogs, letters to the editor and various and sundry posts on websites.

The downside to all this opining is it creates a lot of noise in the communication channels, which makes it difficult to determine exactly how the majority of Edmontonians feel about a downtown arena that would either be partially or fully paid for with civic tax dollars. I think this confusion can be traced back to how the issue was originally presented.

If we could back up in time, I think we should have started asking Edmontonians if they want an NHL team in Edmonton. I suspect the answer would be yes. But, at best, it's just that, a suspicion. This city has changed a great deal since the glory days of the Edmonton Oilers. Many people who live here now have no memory of that time and have no ties to our national winter game whatsoever.

"It could very well be that the majority of Edmontonians don't really care whether we have an NHL team or not. If we had a clear indication of that, the discussion of who pays for a new arena and its location would be moot."

But let's assume we posed that question and the answer was yes. The next step would be to ask Edmontonians if there is a role for the city to play in ensuring we have a team. Again, if the answer was no, the debate would end immediately. If the answer was yes, the next question would be to ask Edmontonians what they would be willing to do to keep our NHL team.

One of the options would have to be nothing, and there are certainly those that have taken that tack. The other option would be to finance a new arena, either entirely or partially with tax dollars.

We could have arrived at an answer to those questions and a clear direction from the public by doing a secure online poll conducted by a neutral third party. Seems to me that would have been money well spent.

Net being swallowed up

Worth mentioning

Swelling numbers of iPads, e-readers and laptops are swallowing up the finite space on the Internet and raising fears of the types of slowdowns and glitches predicted with the Y2K bug.

The problem stems from a decades-old oversight: The Internet's inventors assumed four billion numeric addresses would be plenty.

They weren't counting on tweens from Toronto to Tibet exhausting those addresses with their iPhones, BlackBerrys and Kindles.

There's almost no room left on the Internet for new computers and gadgets and Canadian Internet service providers are competing rather than co-operating to solve the problem.

A new, spacious version of the Internet is available, but many ISPs waited too long to upgrade. Now the biggest fix in cyberspace may come down to the digital equivalent of binder twine and masking tape.

Canadians could see problems when the space expires and ISPs make customers straddle the old Internet and the new Internet.

Old software might fail to reach new websites. Old firewalls might stop everything new from working altogether, or new firewalls might let in hackers old ones stopped.

Metro Minute at trail-use open house

There are an abundance of approved motorized, non-motorized and mixed-use trails in Alberta, and the provincial government wants feedback on a new map showcasing them for trail users.

A new map highlighting an area from Hinton to Edmonton, in the north, to Rocky Mountain House and Rimley, in the south, is the third in a provincial project.

Three open houses are scheduled for Albertans' input, and Edmontonians can provide theirs today from 3-7 p.m. at the Percy Page Centre (Room 3), located at 11759 Groat Rd.

Two other open houses will be held in Edson and Rimley this week. The free map will be printed this spring.

Wherfore art thou, Gnomeo? Atop the box office, that's where.

Walt Disney's Gnomeo & Juliet, an animated 3-D twist on Romeo and Juliet, took in $14.2 million in its third week of release, leading the box office on Oscar weekend.

In a lighthearted, G-rated version of the Shakespeare drama, the film uses garden gnomes in roles usually reserved for heavyweights of the stage.

It was a surprising upset win for Gnomeo, which bested underperforming debuts from Owen Wilson and Nic Cage.

The Farrelly brothers' R-rated comedy Hall Pass earned $13.4 million for Warner Bros. Cage's 3-D action film Drive Angry took in just $5.1 million for Summit Entertainment.

The King's Speech claims Oscar glory

KEVIN WINTER/GETTY IMAGES

► Movie about British monarch takes best picture, best actor, best director and best screenplay ► The Fighter gets two acting awards

The King's Speech was crowned best picture last night at an Academy Awards ceremony as precise as a state coronation, the monarchy drama leading as expected with four Oscars and predictable favourites claiming acting honours.

Colin Firth as stammering British ruler George VI in The King's Speech earned the best-actor prize, while Natalie Portman won best actress as a delusional ballerina in Black Swan.

The boxing drama The Fighter claimed both supporting-acting honours, for Christian Bale as a boxer-turned-drug-abuser and Melissa Leo as a boxing clan's domineering matriarch.

The King's Speech also won the directing prize for Tom Hooper and the original-screenplay Oscar for David Seidler, a boyhood stutterer himself.

"I have a feeling my career's just peaked," Firth said. "I'm afraid I have to warn you that I'm experiencing stirrings somewhere in the upper abdominals which are threatening to form themselves into dance moves."

Among those Portman beat was Annette Bening for The Kids Are All Right. Bening now has lost all four times she's been nominated.

"Thank you so much. This is insane, and I truly, sincerely wish that the prize tonight was to get to work with my fellow nominees. I'm so in awe of you," Portman said.

Network censors bleeped Leo for dropping the F-word during her speech. Backstage, she jokingly conceded it was probably a very inappropriate place to use that particular word.

"Those words, I apologize to anyone that they offend. There is a great deal of the English language that is in my vernacular," Leo said.

Bale joked that he was keeping his language clean. "I'm not going to drop the F-bomb like she

The screenplay win capped a lifelong dream for King's Speech writer Seidler, a boyhood stutterer born in London in 1937, a year after George took the throne. Seidler, who overcame his own stutter at age 16, had long vowed to one day write about the monarch whose fortitude set an example for him in childhood.

The highest concentration of cameras anywhere in the world yesterday was probably at the 83rd Academy Awards.

Besides hundreds of TV cameras on the red carpet, and a worldwide broadcast beamed to more than 200 countries, there were webcams in almost every corner just to catch a glimpse of Hollywood's stars.

Here are some of the highlights of the red carpet experience:

A radiant Oscar co-host Anne Hathaway ran into the Oscar show's producer,

Bruce Cohen, on the red carpet. "Do you like my dress?" she asked. "It's kinda pretty, huh?"

New parents Javier Bardem and Penelope Cruz, the latter in a shimmering reflective red dress, provoked screams of rapture from the fan bleachers.

Justin Timberlake brought his mom as his date. The two posed for photos together on the red carpet.

Last year's best actor winner, Jeff Bridges, nominated for the same award again this year, arrived with his wife and three daughters in tow.

Director Taylor Hackford walked behind wife Helen Mirren, gently holding up the train of her body-hugging silver gown.

Black Swan wins big at Spirit Awards

Darren Aronofsky's Black Swan dominated the Film Independent Spirit Awards, which celebrated the best in independent film with a beachside awards ceremony in Santa Monica the day before the Oscars.

Aronofsky's ballet-focused psychological thriller, which recently crossed the $100 million mark at the box office, won Best Feature, Best Director, Best Cinematographer and Best Actress for Natalie Portman.

With Oscar heavyweights the Social Network and The King's Speech ruled out due to budget and relegated to the foreign film category, respectively, the Spirit Awards were a chance for other Academy Award hopefuls to shine.

Best Actor nominee — and Oscar co-host — James Franco took home the Spirit Award for Best Male Lead, while Oscar nominee John Hawkes won Best Supporting Male for Winter's Bone. The King's Speech still managed to sneak in, winning the Best Foreign Film award.

Given the studio muscle behind Black Swan, some have questioned whether it was fair to place it in competition against other indies. The film qualified because its production budget was below $20 million.

"It's a very hard word to describe and people have been trying to figure it out for years," Aronofsky told reporters after the ceremony, defending his film.

► Abshiro Aden Mohamed, a widow with four children who lives in a Kenyan refugee camp, walks about 20,000 steps a day. On March 8, you can help fight global poverty by walking to raise money for women like Mohamed.

Walking in her shoes

► CARE Canada estimates some women in poor communities walk on average 8,000 steps a day

LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

All over the world, women and girls in some of the poorest communities take on the brunt of domestic labour: collecting firewood, fetching water and gathering food. These tasks entail long, often arduous, walks.

According to CARE Canada, an aid and development organization dedicated to fighting global poverty, these women and girls walk an average of six kilometres a day, which is about 8,000 steps.

Abshiro Aden Mohamed — a 55-year-old widowed mother of four who fled war-torn Somalia in 1991 and settled into the Dadaab Refugee Camp in Kenya where she and her children and grandchildren still live today, along with 10,000 other refugees — surpasses the statistics. She walks an average of 20,000 steps a day.

Here's what a typical day walking in Abshiro's well-trodden shoes is like.

Zero kilometres

Abshiro wakes up at 5 a.m. to pray before waking her youngest child, a 13-year-old daughter, along with her grandchildren for school and preparing breakfast for her entire family, which includes two grown sons, and their wives and her grown daughter. She then feeds her goats, fetches water from the nearby tap stand and walks the goats to the farthest end of camp where herdsmen take them to graze in the bush.

6 kilometres

After returning home, Abshiro walks the 30-minute route to the camp's market, where she owns a grocery stall, arriving at about 9 a.m. to open her business, which she runs with her 25-year-old daughter. Abshiro spends the next two hours dealing with wholesalers and stocking her stall, before heading out at 11 a.m. on a 30-minute walk to the other end of camp where she is supervising the construction of a boarding and lodging facility. Some days she must also walk to the food ration centre.

12 kilometres

Abshiro walks back to her stall in the heat, arriving at 1 p.m. to check on business. She then walks home to prepare tea for the children, perform her afternoon prayers and fetch more water. By the time she returns with water, it is 6 p.m. and Abshiro prepares dinner for the family. While they eat, she walks to the outskirts of camp to pick up her goats. She and the goats return home, she feeds them, performs evening prayers and bathes.

15 kilometres

At 9 p.m., Abshiro finally eats dinner, visits with neighbours for 20 minutes, does her laundry and goes to bed around 11:30 p.m.

"Every day is a happy day given to us by God," she says. "I am healthy and at peace of heart. I have all my children with me ... and they are of good health."

Putting ice on a low-salt diet

► There are new alternatives to those environmentally unsafe road salts ► EcoTraction is one that may stick

Edmonton

What's going on in your city:

► Efforts Every winter, the City of Edmonton uses over 120,000 tons of salt and sand to de-ice the area's 4,800 km of roads and alleyways. The salt absorbs into the environment with the annual melting of snow and ice come springtime. Up to 80 per cent of the sand can be reclaimed and reused again.

BEN KNIGHT
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

Canadian cities use an enormous amount of salt and gravel to keep their roads and highways ice-free. This salt damages infrastructure, eventually seeping into the ground and water systems, where it causes harmful, expensive, toxic after-effects.

EcoTraction is a pollution-free alternative developed by Canadian entrepreneurs. It bonds to ice, increasing traction, and blows away as dust when the ice is gone. It's been featured on the popular CBC television program Dragons' Den.

What are the pollution dangers of traditional road salt?

"Every ton of salt that we put on the road causes $900 in damage to roads, bridges and landscaping in our cities," says EcoTraction co-founder Mark Watson. "That's not counting rust on cars, and your shoes that get destroyed, and your pets that get sick. Multiply that by 10-million tons, and now you've got a $9-billion problem. On top of that, every ton of salt contaminates 1.64 million litres of water, to the point where it is no longer drinkable. There is no industrial contaminant larger than road salt."

How does this new product work?

"EcoTraction is 100 per cent eco-friendly alternative to chloride-based ice melters," Watson explains.

"It's an all-natural volcanic mineral that absorbs the thin layer of water on the surface of snow and ice, and embeds itself to create a traction zone that makes it safe to walk. It's so safe, it helps plants grow — and actually de-contaminates water. A lot of it simply disappears as dust. It can also be swept up, and used again the following year. This stuff can even be added to municipal compost — those green-bin programs — to make super-rich compost."

What are the costs compared to traditional salt?

"One cup of our EcoTraction is equal to nine cups of salt," Watson notes.

"Per square foot, it's half the price, and there's no toxic secondary consequences. It doesn't burn the concrete. It doesn't burn landscaping. It doesn't burn a city's fleet of vehicles. When salt goes in the water, it's a massive pollutant. When EcoTraction goes into the water, it filters dangerous material, and is safe for aquamarine life."

Starting out

Tips for entrepreneurs.

- Make community and relationships the foundation of your life and your business.
- Believe in yourself and surround yourself with people who believe in you.

Make the most of your home office

► Today's home offices can be versatile in look, function and form ► Here's how to make your space work for you

For most of us, the home office is a must, but it doesn't have to be the cluttered storage room for all your household's odds and ends.

Today's home offices can be versatile in look, function, form — and even location.

Frank Turco, senior manager of trend and design with The Home Depot Canada, recommends these tips to make your home office work for you.

Two rooms in one

If your home doesn't have a dedicated office, incorporating a workstation into the kitchen can be easily done.

Plus, easy access to the workstation ensures you can keep your eyes on the "staff" while they play close by.

Organize for efficiency

Look to better organize your workstation. If the base of your computer is only accessed for troubleshooting, place it under your desk.

Need to print on a daily basis? Keep your printer within reach.

How about more space and storage? Consider storage solutions that are both functional and stylish.

Creatively categorize

Take the pegboard out of the garage and use it in your office to hang essentials — everything from scissors to staplers.

Try painting the pegboard a bright colour to add a touch of decor to the space.

Out of space

If you're in need of a home office but feel you simply don't have the space, floating shelves and storage cubes may be the solution for you. What's best is they can be tailored for your space and needs.

Out of mind...

Would you prefer your home office is out of sight and out of mind when not in use? Then an unused closet may make the perfect space.

Simply add shelving to create storage and a desk and wallpaper to finish the look.

For more great ways to update your home office, visit homedepot.ca.

Just say no to scare tactics: Experts

► When it comes to drug prevention among teens, a realistic approach may be the key

Nathaniel Koutsostavros had a rough adolescence. An absent father and a bipolar grandmother created a tough life at home, while weight issues and depression made high school painful.

At 17, he turned to drugs and soon spiralled out of control, often spending $300 a day on cocaine. Looking back, many of those days remain a blur, but the Toronto native does remember the prevention programs that tried to stop him from what he had become, and how they didn't seem to work.

"It was unrealistic," says Koutsostavros, now a recovering drug addict who remembers the scare tactics used to ward teens away from substance abuse. "If someone would have come to me and honestly talked to me about drugs, it probably would have helped a little more."

Koutsostavros recalls being plied with horror stories about how one ecstasy pill could kill, or how smoking marijuana would lead to schizophrenia. Daring teenagers not to use drugs simply goaded them into trying them, he says.

"When I tried weed I said, 'This is not doing anything,' and so I would try other drugs and they would have a more positive effect than what they led me to believe," says Koutsostavros. "I feel like scare tactics are the worst things you can use with drugs."

The 21-year-old, who completed a stint in rehab a year and a half ago, now shares his experiences with high school kids, offering a realistic view of what happens to addicts. No horror stories, just the facts.

It's an approach that a leading scientist in the U.S. is trying hard to push into practice all over North America.

Dr. Nora Volkow, director of the National Institute on Drug Abuse, says teens are more likely to respond to drug prevention messages if they come from other young people. But, she cautions, teens are also more likely to take drugs if their peers do as well.

"We need to tailor addiction programs to take into account these two factors," says Volkow. "A message that is targeted toward really emphasizing the negative consequences in a way that is tailored for adolescents would be more effective."

► A multi-pronged drug prevention approach, targeting an adolescent's family, school and community, is needed, says a leading U.S. scientist.

that is tailored for adolescents would be more effective."

A multi-pronged drug prevention approach, which targets an adolescent's family, school and community, would pack the hardest punch, she says. But while evidence for the success of such programs exists, Volkow says only a handful of schools and communities implement them. And that's something she hopes will change.

"You need simple, realistic, user-friendly prevention approaches, otherwise it won't go anywhere," she says.

Dennis Long knows communities can do more to prevent teenage substance abuse. The director of Breakaway, a Toronto-based outreach and addiction treatment centre, has been in the field for 35 years and says the numbers for youth drug use aren't declining in any significant way.

But he says it's important that teen drug abuse prevention programs get away from focusing solely on addiction because adolescents use substances differently. Long explains that teenagers have a higher tendency to stay clean during the week and then binge on any given substance over the weekend, meaning prevention efforts have to take such habits into consideration.

He adds that it's also important for parents and teachers to realize that substances like alcohol can be just as dangerous as hard drugs when abused.

"We get parents in here

The teen brain

Part of the solution is understanding just how different teenage brains are.

► Volkow explains that teen brains are thought to be more likely to experiment with drugs because they are still developing. The connections between the area of the brain that makes decisions and the area that takes action aren't as strong as those in adults, she says.

► Once exposed to drugs, Volkow's institute has shown that teenagers are more vulnerable to becoming addicted because their developing brains are able to adapt and learn certain behaviours faster than adults.

that are very upset they've discovered a joint in their son or daughter's room and yet, when we start talking to the young person we find they're drinking at an alarming rate but the parents are like, 'Oh that's OK, it's just beer,'" he says. "We have to start to look at how we endorse certain kinds of behaviour patterns among young people."

Ultimately, Long's team tries to stay realistic when reaching out to teens. "We don't come from a hard-line abstinence base. That's completely ineffective," he says. "We give them the straight facts, drawn from scientific evidence. We don't try to scare them."

Deadline day could lack drama

The biggest day for buzz on the NHL calendar starts awfully early in Allan Walsh's office. The Los Angeles-based agent is making sure all hands are on deck leading up to today's trade deadline.

"I want the office completely staffed and we're up and running at 4:30 a.m. L.A. time," Walsh said yesterday. "We divide up responsibilities. I have a couple people that I assign to monitoring what's going on — TSN, Sportsnet, on the Internet. At the same time, I'm working the phones talking to different GMs and players."

It's the kind of scene that plays out all over the hockey world. Management teams gather in war rooms, anxious players stay glued to their cellphones and fans tune in for hours and hours of live television coverage and analysis.

There is traditionally a dizzying amount of action — 31 trades involving 55 players were made last year — as teams try to load up for a playoff run or get started on a rebuild.

A unique aspect of today's 1 p.m. deadline is the fact an unusually high number of deals have already been made in recent weeks. More than two-thirds of NHL teams have been involved in player transactions this month, raising doubts about how much action will be left for the final day.

Walsh is confident there will still be plenty of movement. He spoke with about 12 GMs yesterday in an effort to get an understanding of what might be coming for his clients.

"I think there'll be a lot of activity, I just think there's not going to be many — if any — blockbuster deals," said Walsh.

Quick start not enough

► Oilers draw first blood, but can't best Bruins, who've won five straight
► Edmonton's next game is tomorrow at home against Nashville

Michael Ryder had a goal and an assist as the Boston Bruins defeated the Edmonton Oilers 3-2 yesterday.

Nathan Horton and Rich Peverley also scored for the Bruins (36-19-7), who have won five straight on their current six-game road trip.

Ales Hemsky and Gilbert Brule replied for the Oilers (20-35-8), who have lost two in a row and three of their last four.

The Oilers, often victims of early goals against this season, started the game off quickly themselves for once as Hemsky collected a rebound and slid the puck under Bruins goalie Tuukka Rask just 1:05 into the game.

Boston came back to tie the game 1-1 with four and-a-half minutes left in the opening frame. Ryder scooped up a rebound and waited for Oilers goalie Devan Dubnyk to go down before sending a shot into the top of the net for his 17th goal of the season.

The Bruins went ahead by one with just 1:21 left in the first as David Krejci faked a shot before sending it over to Horton who had an empty net to shoot it into.

Boston outshot the Oilers 15-5 in the first period. The Bruins continued to dominate play in the second period but weren't rewarded until the final minute when Ryder fed Peverley, who deked out Dubnyk to score his first goal as a Bruin since coming over in a trade with Atlanta.

Boston had a 32-12 lead on the shot clock after 40 minutes.

It's been eight games and more than 10 years since Edmonton last defeated Boston in October of 2000.

Sports in brief

Cabrera will join lineup

MLB. Miguel Cabrera will be in the Detroit Tigers lineup for the first time this spring as a designated hitter in today's exhibition game against the New York Yankees.

Cabrera missed the first week of camp after being arrested for suspicion of driving under the influence of alcohol Feb. 15 near Fort Pierce, Fla.

► Holland denies Jones a fourth straight title

GOLF. Luke Donald spoiled Martin Kaymer's rise to No. 1 in the world by winning the Match Play Championship with a week so dominant that he never played the 18th hole. With the match tied at the turn, Donald won two straight holes and finished off Kaymer on the 16th hole.

4 Jennifer Jones was attempting to win a fourth straight Scotties and tie the record for consecutive titles.

Saskatchewan's Amber Holland has ended the reign of Jennifer Jones at the Scotties Tournament of Hearts with an 8-7 win over the four-time champion.

Holland stole a single point in the 10th end last night for the victory.

Holland, third Kim Schneider, second Tammy Schneider and lead Heather

Kalenchuk will represent Canada at the Capital One World Women's Curling Championship.

Today's horoscope

Aries March 21-April 20 Your confidence may be at a low ebb as the new week begins but it's only a passing phase, so don't feel too bad.

Taurus April 21-May 21 You don't have to go along with what other people suggest. You have a mind of your own and you would be wise to use it today.

Gemini May 22-June 21 You may be tempted to hit the town and have a good time but there are more important things you should be doing. The Sun in Pisces can make or break your reputation, so do you party hard or do you work hard?

Cancer June 22-July 22

Someone will make you the kind of offer you find hard to refuse but if you are smart you will say "no". If it sounds too good to be true it's most likely a trick to part you from something you value.

Leo July 23-Aug. 23 Do not get involved in a quarrel that has nothing to do with you. Not only will you be unable to resolve it but the warring parties may unite and start picking on you.

Virgo Aug. 24-Sept. 22 It's not like you to seek approval — usually you couldn't care less what other people think — but for some strange reason you crave the support of partners and colleagues. Just be careful you don't pay too much for it.

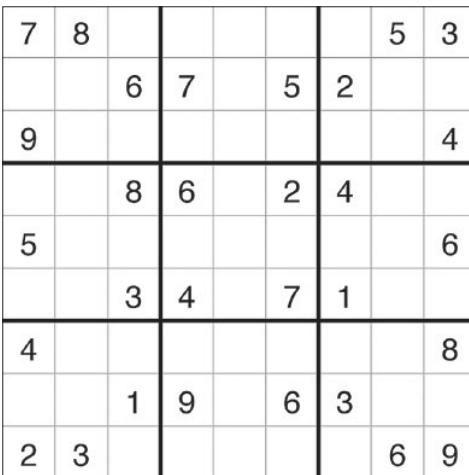

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 You are beginning to realize that you have bitten off more than you can chew. How you got into this situation is not important — what matters is how you are going to get out of it.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Your confidence may be high at the moment but that won't protect you from people who are hoping to get rich at your expense.

Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 The Sun in the sensitive sign of Pisces is making it hard for you to hide your anxieties, but why would you want to? You don't have to face each and every situation alone.
